

Engaging Male Offenders in Ending Violence against Women

At any point in the group sessions, the counselors may determine that a participant is either not engaging or displays too much hostility. Should this occur, male offenders will be advised to withdraw from the program.